Barnes III: Have you got your copy of Barnes III yet? Now's the perfect time to buy one for yourself or the ECD musician in your life! The much-anticipated third volume of The Barnes Book of English Country Dance is here after a 14-year wait! 414 entries include historical tunes to now-popular dances, and recently composed tunes to new dances. A must-have for English dance musicians, callers, and historians.

Nowell Sing We Clear Songs & Carols: A tremendous compilation that spans Nowell Sing We Clear's 40 years of bringing midwinter and Christmastide songs to life with their beautiful harmonies and instrumentation. This book presents the bulk of their repertoire—over 100 songs. The perfect companion for any caroling party, pub sing, or upcoming holiday tour. Wire-bound for easy use.

Further Adventures: A brand new tune book from Larry Unger of all original compositions—his first in 20 years! Includes 212 tunes—most of which are suitable for dance and complete with chord markings. From jigs and reels to waltzes and zwiefachers, it includes banjo and guitar tabs, dances, and a drink recipe. Don't miss out on this fabulous collection!

Ease and Elegance: Fried de Metz Herman's groundbreaking sixth book of dances, first published in 1995, is now available again in a limited reprinting. Among the 47 dances in the collection are such classics as Cat in the Window, Leah's Waltz, and The Wood Duck. The volume also includes Fried's important essay on English country dancing, with notes for dancers, style points, and notes for teachers and the band.

LETTERS & ANNOUNCEMENTS

Birth Announcement:

Jenny Beer and Scott Higgs announce the arrival (at last!) of their new book: "Key to the Cellar." Among the 46 dances, you will find a few established favorites (e.g., "Minor Spaniard", "Leslie's Valentine") and dozens of fresh creations. The new dances are already appearing on programs across North America and 'across the pond' in the U.K. See www.scotthiggs.com/key or the CDSS Store for more details, samples, and ordering. Happy dancing!

Online Auction Coming in March!

If you’ve been to a CDSS camp, you know that the fundraising auction is a fun way to support CDSS and win some unique items. If you’ve never been, then you’ll soon have a chance to find out what you’ve been missing! The CDSS Board will run the first ever North American CDSS online auction in March. Items will include opportunities to commission/name dance tunes and dances from leading choreographers and composers, chances to have leading dance callers call a dance in your community, exotic home stays, and much more. Look for more information at CDSS.org, on social media, and in emails from CDSS. The fun begins in March!

Call for Scholarly Song and Dance Articles

Country Dance + Song Online, CDSS’s peer-reviewed scholarly journal, is seeking articles that explore how Anglo-American dance and song traditions continue to be relevant in the age of the internet and the cell phone.

What’s your passion? Check out our past articles cdss.org/programs/cdss-news-publications/cds-online and submit your paper or proposal to Allison Thompson, General Editor, by February 1, 2020.

Our First Full Year of CDSS Web Chats!

We’re thrilled to announce that our four web chats in 2019 included 21 guest speakers and 185 participants from 25 states, 3 provinces, and France! Topics included…

- January 16: Increasing Youth Involvement discussed social media, university affiliations, including youth as organizers and board members, respect and safety, gender-free calling, making events affordable, and more.

- April 4: Family/Community Dance Organizers Unite discussed creating and sustaining intergenerational dances, flexible partnering, engaging volunteers, including fun non-dance activities, connecting with the broader music, dance, and song community, and related topics.

- July 11: Building Safe Dance Communities discussed resources to help music, song, and dance groups provide safe environments at their events, including tips for addressing complaints, giving effective feedback, a toolkit for developing policies and procedures, etc.

- October 16: Connecting Community Sing Organizers was our first web chat to support organizers of community singing groups across the continent! Guest speakers shared their experiences and perspectives about leading song circles, sea chantey sings, and pub sings.

To delve further into this new resource, check out the recordings and materials from these web chats on the CDSS website: cdss.org/resources/how-to/organizers

Poetry & Painting by Sarah Hirsch

you can feel that pull, the momentum an arc of someone’s life swung for a moment into your orbit eyes locked and there’s a certain embarrassment a caught me gasp but there’s no time for we have already seen each other caught by the chance of looking as we move through sound each of us a particular specific story, a satellite of yearning and touch and distance and there is a clinging—a static realization of love, maybe—I can only believe love knows many forms before we tessellate and realign and know someone else again

Did you know? CDSS has scanned and uploaded vintage issues of The Country Dancer to their website. Why? For you to read and enjoy! —The above appeared in the 1965/66 issue.
Well folks, the first year of our 5-year strategic plan is coming to a close, and what an incredible year it has been! We hired four new people, and now have permanent off-site employees in NC, TN, and CT. We continued growing our resources for organizers and hosted four web chats, expanded the crowd-sourced materials in our online organizer portal, and provided labor and sponsorship to Shared Weight as they upgraded their home for grassroots listservs. We launched the CDSS Commons, our new interactive online platform that houses the Member Directory, Affiliate Directory, Camp Registrations, and the CDSS Store. And we focused on our Affiliate Groups. We reached out to update their contact info for the directory, initiated quarterly informative e-blasts, and launched our Annual Affiliate Survey. The extensive 2019 survey directly informed our plans for 2020, and provided the baseline from which we will measure future growth and support for this important value network.

CDSS staff, board, and community members formed task groups to spearhead our Strategic Focus Areas. The Archives Task Group became better acquainted with our collection and established relations with the University of New Hampshire Archive employees with whom work will continue in 2020. A new Camps Task Group came together, revamped the 2019 camper evaluations to collect more data, and began the work of articulating mission and vision statements for each of our CDSS camp sessions. The Marketing Task Group coordinated summer marketing as we hired a new Marketing Manager, and recruited photographers and graphic designers from within our fold to be part of our ongoing work.

So, what’s coming next? In 2020, you’ll see CDSS:

- Expanding organizer resources, including Web Chats with new topics and new guest speakers from across the continent, new sections and materials in the online Organizers’ Portal, and a collaboration with Shared Weight.
- Improving the Affiliate Group partnership structure to allow for synchronized affiliation and insurance renewals. (That just made some Affiliates very happy!)
- Piloting collaborative dance organizer forum models at non-CDSS dance weekends, based on the successful Inland Northwest Forum in October of 2019.
- Reenergizing CDSS camp programs, including a dynamic and user-friendly camps webpage, a fresh mission for CDSS camp programs, newly articulated visions for each week, six week-long intensive training courses, and opportunities for elementary and secondary teachers to receive continuing education credits.
- Launching the Educators Task Group, focusing effort on the people who teach children in formal education settings, learning about approaches to incorporate traditional material into classrooms, and helping CDSS establish partnerships with other organizations that support educators. We have a lot to offer, and even more to learn! If you know an educator with experience in incorporating traditional dance, music, and song into their teaching, please pass along their name or encourage them to contact katy@cdss.org.

As we close out another year of dance, music, and song, I invite you to become more involved in the CDSS mission. Tell the callers, organizers, musicians, song leaders, and sound technicians in your lives that you appreciate them. Let the people with whom you dance and sing know how much they mean to you. And send in a year-end contribution to CDSS, to help transform the world one dance, one tune, and one song at a time!

—Katy German, CDSS Executive Director
In response to many requests for resources on the topic of safety at local dance events, the CDSS Board has established a Community Culture and Safety Task Group. The task group aims to support local communities in their efforts to provide a safe environment for music, song, and dance events.

As CDSS, we are not prescriptive in regards to what your community “should be doing.” We recognize and value the range of living traditions practiced by our communities. Rather, we are working to provide advice and support by collecting thoughts and documents from across the U.S. and Canada and synthesizing them into a coherent set of resources. We hope this will make it easier for local organizers to understand and facilitate safety, to develop the policies, procedures, and supporting documents needed, and to discuss controversial topics productively when they arise. We welcome input from local organizers and dancers who have worked on these issues.

So far, the task group has identified five areas of concern that affect safety in all its aspects at the local level, all of which can be addressed in documents comprising what we are calling a Safety Structure. We recommend that communities develop a statement of community values, a code of conduct, courtesy & etiquette guidelines, complaint response procedures, and a checklist of things to consider for the physical venue (such as ADA accessibility, trip hazards, decibel level, emergency medical procedures, etc.). Having these documents in place can help prevent problems in the first place, provide tools to nip problems in the bud before they become big issues, and address larger problems as needed.

We aim to support communities in developing these elements by a) organizing/creating a clearinghouse of existing literature, training, and other resources for each one, and b) vetting existing materials to create a toolkit of exemplars, from which local leaders may easily copy and paste (or edit) more efficiently than plowing through the entire clearinghouse of samples and discussions. We hope the toolkit will ease the process of writing these documents at the local level by providing a flow and sequence (outline or format) for each document, as well as a manageable batch of sample language from other communities.

We had a web chat in July 2019 to introduce this work and start a discussion, and we have released a first draft of the toolkit on the topic of Courtesy and Etiquette (Shaping Culture). These are both available on the CDSS Organizers Resource Portal cdss.org/webchats. We chose Courtesy and Etiquette as our first topic because it is the one for which the most work has already been done by music, song, and dance communities, and it seems to be the item that is most wished for by communities addressing safety for the first time.

Next we will work on a toolkit for developing a Statement of Community Values, as that is what drives (or informs) the other elements. Ideally, a community should first determine what their community values are, and then use them to guide development of the other elements. toolkits for Code of Conduct, Handling Complaints, and The Venue will follow in the future, as well as tips and resources for facilitating discussion of controversial topics (e.g., selection of terminology, declining a dance, enforcing a group’s code of conduct).

There is already a good deal of information on the CDSS organizers’ portal, although it’s a lot to look through, which is why the task group hopes to simplify this process. In the meantime, there are many good ideas ready for you to explore at cdss.org/topics. You may find Community Culture: Event feel, inclusivity, and more and Community Safety and Etiquette to be of special interest. As we develop the Clearinghouse, we will reorganize these materials to fit into the categories of the recommended Safety Structure described above.

There have also been some good discussions on the Shared Weight listserv. To subscribe to the organizer list, visit www.sharedweight.net. We will be reviewing past discussions and pulling out the salient points from this list and other social media postings as part of our work.

We hope this growing set of resources will be helpful to local communities that are working to address safety. We welcome input from communities who have already made good progress and are willing to share their experience and wisdom. Please email the Community Culture and Safety Task Group: cdss.safetyTG@gmail.com.
“She’s inspired dancers with her music—exquisitely played, full of forward motion and joyful variety...”
The Country Dance and Song Society is pleased to announce that Kate Barnes of Greenfield, MA, is the 2020 recipient of the CDSS Lifetime Contribution Award. Kate was selected in recognition of many years of performance and teaching at CDSS programs, the international importance of her publications, her generosity of spirit when running music workshops, and her contributions to current and future communities. Kate will be honored next fall at an event in the greater Boston area. Details of that event will be announced in the Spring 2020 edition of the News.

“As a contra dance piano player, Kate pioneered an improvisatory style that brings joy to dancers, and influences musicians directly and through countless workshops. Her decades-long work with Bare Necessities created fresh interpretations of English country dance music to lift our feet, and the three volumes of the Barnes books are the standard reference collections of tunes used by musicians throughout the dance community.” —David Millstone, Lebanon, NH (caller, former CDSS president)

“Kate has contributed consistently to the scene for more decades than I know. She’s inspired dancers with her music — exquisitely played, full of forward motion and joyful variety, sensitive to the period, tune type and occasion, and in tight teamwork with other musicians. She’s a reason many people like English dancing.” —Bruce Hamilton, Menlo Park, CA (caller, former CDSS president)

“I’ve had the great fortune to travel the US, Canada and even as far as Denmark with The Latter Day Lizards. Everywhere we go Kate is universally known and respected and admired for her musicianship, warmth and quick-witted humor. I can’t think of a better recipient for next year’s CDSS Lifetime Contribution award!” —Dave Langford, Arlington, MA (musician, bandmate)

“Since I first heard and started playing with her in the 1970’s, her passionate, creative, traditionally spirited—but-not-stifled playing and composing have been a bottomless wellspring. Kate’s ink-stained (and later electronic) publishing labors of love have saved many musicians from hauling libraries around in order to play for a dances and have encouraged many to learn the underappreciated craft of playing for dancing. I’m grateful for Kate’s strong, courageous commitment to self-expression, and her deep commitment to the much-needed-in-today’s-world, affirming values of our dance community.” —Jaqueline Schwab, Cambridge, MA (musician, bandmate)
CDSS is excited to announce the resurgence of SharedWeight.net, a powerful online community that supports those passionate about traditional dance, music, and song.

A brief 101 about Shared Weight

Shared Weight is a group of listservs. Each separate list brings together people who are passionate about a particular topic, connecting them through email. Members of a listserv can ask questions of their group as well as share ideas, discuss topics, and provide encouragement.

Renewing and expanding Shared Weight

Early in 2019, CDSS partnered with Seth Seeger and Chris Weiler (founders of Shared Weight listservs for contra callers, organizers, and musicians), Alan Winston (founder of the English country dance list), Ridge Kennedy (founder of the trad callers list), and Weogo Reed (founder of the contra sound forum). We have been working throughout the year to bring all of the lists under one umbrella as well as update the back-end software, create a new Shared Weight website (thank you Emily Rush for your volunteer work!), tweak the mandates of a few lists, and promote them more widely. We have also identified some ‘list champions’ to shepherd certain lists (thank you to these folks!). The whole team is excited about what this new partnership offers.

I’m excited about the renewed energy and focus from all the list owners and the improvements to the services. I hope that more people in our community can take advantage of the expanded resources and support that we can provide. — Chris Weiler

It makes a lot more sense for a list of national/international scale to be supported by a continental organization (CDSS)... I’m hoping the website and the CDSS News articles will help bring this resource to the attention of more people who can use it. — Alan Winston Shared Weight’s vision is to increase the vitality of the traditional dance, music, and song community in North America. And the mission is to provide an accessible, non-corporate online-platform that hosts communities of traditional dance, music, and song organizers and performers with the goal of supporting each other across geographical boundaries.

Being a leader in traditional arts (whether as a caller, musician, organizer, song leader, or sound tech) can be rewarding and enjoyable, but it can also be challenging and isolating work. The Shared Weight lists bring us together so that we can act as a support network for each other. Each of the list founders is proud that the Shared Weight lists are very positive communities, welcoming of both new and experienced individuals.

Through building audio skills capacity, we are improving local dance, singing, and other events, which helps build our communities as a whole. Several list members are experts in various fields, so we can get real answers to questions, rather than just guesses. At the same time, musicians, callers and organizers have brought a different, helpful perspective. From the start I stated that posts should be ok for reading by one’s mother or eight year old child, which has built a community of respect and collaborative learning. — Weogo Reed

Why listservs? What do they have to offer?

Listservs are a great platform for hosting online conversations, and yet we recognize that no one platform meets everyone’s needs. Here are some advantages of listservs:

- They are simple, reliable, and durable. Additionally, the Shared Weight lists run on open-source software, therefore being independent of large corporations who make their money off of their users.
- Listserv archives hold a wealth of information and are easy to search by subject, which is harder to do in platforms such as Facebook.
• Some individuals don’t use social media, whereas most individuals have an email address.
• Users can set the list messages to be sent to them immediately or in digest mode (one email that contains many posts).

What lists are hosted by Shared Weight?

• Dance organizers: This list has recently expanded its scope to serve organizers involved in any form of traditional social dance (e.g., Appalachian squares, contra, barn dances, ceilidh, and more). Topics vary widely (e.g., how to increase attendance, financial models, safety issues).

• TradSound: This list was previously called the ContraSoundForum. It has recently expanded to include anyone interested in doing sound for traditional dance and concert events. Discussion topics include people skills, hearing preservation, acoustics, audio equipment, system operation, and more.

• Contra callers: Just as the title suggests, this is a list for those who want to discuss calling contra dances.

• Trad callers: This list welcomes a wide range of callers, including those interested in calling for school-aged children, barn dances, traditional square dance (in its various forms), one night stands, and more!

• ECD: This list is for discussing all aspects of modern and historical English country dance and its related forms. Topics include calling, dancing, organizing, and music.

• Dance musicians: This list has recently expanded its scope to serve musicians who play for any form of traditional social dance (e.g., family dances, contra, ECD, Quebecois squares, Balfolk, and more). Topics vary from how to get gigs to how to play in a way that excites dancers.

Online communities with similar services

Each of these can be found through a quick Google search:

• Pourparler is a group dedicated to teaching folk/ethnic/world/traditional dance in schools and/or in the wider community. To be added to this listserv, you need to have attended one of the annual Pourparler gatherings.

• Morris Dancing Discussion List (MDDL) is an unmoderated discussion group about all things Morris.

• Mudcat Cafe is a listserv for those interested in traditional song. Much of the conversation focuses on song lyrics and history.

• Organizers of Contra Dance is a Facebook group for contra dance organizers.

• Song Session Organizers is a Facebook group for traditional song leaders.

The possibility of new lists

The Shared Weight team welcomes the idea of hosting other lists that serve the traditional dance, music, and song community. We have recently identified a number of individuals who would like to have a listserv for traditional song organizers, and so we are exploring the option of launching a new list sometime this winter. We have also discussed the possibility of a listserv for ritual dance leaders/organizers depending on interest from the community. Please email me if you are interested in either of these lists or if you have suggestions for other lists. emily@cdss.org

On behalf of CDSS, I want to say a HUGE thank you to Alan Winston, Chris Weiler, Ridge Kennedy, Seth Seeger, and Weogo Reed. These community leaders identified the need for support networks 15-25 years ago, and they found a way to pull us together. Each of these lists has benefited hundreds of individuals throughout North America and beyond, strengthening our shared traditions.

We encourage you to join one or more of these lists to share the weight and become part of a community of people who share similar passions as you!
As the nights get longer and temperatures drop, this is the perfect time to dream about summer adventures. For all of the many things that CDSS does throughout the year to support traditional dance, music, and song, we are perhaps still best known for our summer camps. These camps are the oldest summer dance programs in North America and have been enjoyed by thousands of people for generations. These week-long camps provide the time to dig into specific traditions and styles, in an immersive experience that you just can’t get in a weekend. Each week offers a mix of English and American dancing, singing, and music, but each one also has its own special vibe. The opportunity to learn and hone skills is an integral part of our camps, and many weeks have special intensive courses for callers, musicians, teachers, and others who are interested in diving deeper into a specific topic.

What’s on tap for the 2020 season:

★ MASSACHUSETTS: CDSS has been presenting programs at Pinewoods Camp since 1933! Nestled between two sparkling ponds near the base of Cape Cod, Pinewoods is famous for its covered outdoor dance pavilions, cabins in the woods, and dining hall that overlooks the pond and serves freshly made, wholesome food. Pinewoods is home to six CDSS program weeks:

- Family Week (July 18-25) kicks off the season with a full program of adult sessions, while kids enjoy music and dance activities with inspiring teachers. Three-generation families are common, and there’s lots of time for swimming, games, and relaxing. Harmony of Song and Dance (July 25-August 1) is our newest week at Pinewoods and emphasizes the connections between song and dance. The focus of English Dance Week (August 1-8) is English country dance, and includes ritual dance, instrumental classes, singing, and contra. Joanna Reiner will teach an English Dance Leaders intensive course during this week, as well as leading dancing for the whole camp. For keen ritual dancers, Gillian Stewart will teach a course called Take Five: A Longsword Intensive.

- At American Dance Week (August 8-15), you will find contras and squares and old-time jams. Lisa Greenleaf will teach a Contra Dance Callers course during this week. Early Music Week (August 15-22) includes English dancing, but the focus is really on music, with an expanded faculty of instrumental instructors. The Accademia intensive course during this week is a high-level program designed for advanced musicians and singers, and focuses on music from High Renaissance and Early Baroque periods. Our season at Pinewoods wraps up with Campers’ Week (August 22-29), a multi-generational week where the campers take a lead role in organizing and running the classes.

   “Take the leap, it will change your life in ways you could never imagine.” — Matt Reyna, camper

★ NEW HAMPSHIRE: Meanwhile, dancing takes place at Ogontz Camp in a beautiful wood-timbered hall with a large deck overlooking the lake in the White Mountains. Family Week at Ogontz (July 25-August 1) offers a full program of adult and kids’ programming to a large multi-generational community. Every afternoon, the whole camp gathers at the Green Chairs for stories and community fun.

★ MARYLAND: Just south of the Pennsylvania border, Camp Louise is a large, wooded facility with roomy program spaces, two large pools, and an air-conditioned dining hall. Cascade of Music and Dance (August 10-16) is the successor to our programs at Buffalo Gap and Timber Ridge and is a multi-generational camp with families and adults from their 20s to 70s. In addition to English and American dancing, it has a strong art and singing focus. This year, Robbin Marcus will lead a Traditional Music and Dance for Music Teachers course, helping educators bring the magic of camp home to their classrooms.

★ MICHIGAN: Finally, the newest CDSS summer program is Dance, Music, and Spice (August 9-16) at Camp Cavell on the Michigan shore of Lake Huron. This week not only offers the traditional dance and music programs you have come to expect from CDSS camps, but also a parallel track of non-dance activities such as kayaking, technical tree climbing, birding, and quilting. In 2020, Julie Valimont and Noah VanNorstrand will lead an American Dance Musicians course.
Magic awaits...

Becket (clockwise progression)

   Neighbor swing

A2 R's chain across (8)
   R's mad robin (8) while L's “half mad” (4)*

   to start)

B2 Partner right shoulder round and swing
   Slide left along the set to progress

*During the “half mad,” R's essentially perform an entire mad robin, starting by moving counterclockwise in front of, then around, their partners and coming back to the place they started the move. L's start by moving/sliding counterclockwise behind their partners, then passing in front of their partners to the center of the set facing the other L, with whom they right shoulder round 1x and end facing their partners (L's back-to-back in the middle facing out; R's facing in) ready to start the hey for four.

This is the figure previously known as “gypsy.” Though CDSS has not jumped into the fray to endorse another term, we are aware that some communities and callers have made a substitution for this figure. See page 24 of the Summer 2019 News (available online) for more information on this topic.

Matthew “Beadle” Beadlecomb is a caller, dancer, and musician from Nashville, Tenn. When not running the compost pick-up service Compost Nashville, he calls contra dances throughout the Southeast and plays fiddle in the band Contra Mantra.
May Nichols gave this song to Margaret MacArthur in Guilford, Vermont, in October 1961 and said she had it from her husband’s mother, Nellie Nichols. Although a few Southern folksong collections have different versions of a related song (most with drunken husbands), none contain these final two stanzas. Thanks to Bob Coltman, it seems that Mrs. Nichols’ “Single Girl” is most like “I Wish I Were Single Again”—a song popular in the late 1800s and printed in a Wehman’s Songster. Margaret’s recording of May Nichols appears to be its only collection in the folk tradition. Now both Margaret and her granddaughter, Robin, have recorded “Single Girl,” or “Single Again” as they title it, for their own CDs, although this song remains a little-known treasure.

Single Again
Traditional
From the Singing of May Nichols and Margaret MacArthur

When I was single I lived at my ease.
Now I am married and a husband to please.
Three small children to maintain,
Wish in my heart I was single again.

One cries “Mama, I want a piece of bread”
Another cries “Mama, I want to go to bed”
Wash them, undress them, put them all to bed
In comes husband, I’m wishing them all dead,

All young men when they first fall in love
It’s “oh my little honey” and “my little turtle dove”
When they get married it’s no such thing
“Get up and get the breakfast you cross ugly thing,”

All young men when they strut about the town
One would think they are worth a thousand pound
Look into their pockets not a penny would you find
Oh how fickle is a young man’s mind.

The Victoria English Country Dance Society (VECDS) celebrated its 20th anniversary this year. During their 20 years of dancing they have often provided training for aspiring callers at Hands Across the Water, their annual workshop weekend. As a result of discussions held last year among callers from the Pacific Northwest, a more intensive, three-day workshop for experienced callers was planned for Hands Across the Water 2019. An extra day was added, Bruce Hamilton, a well-known caller and teacher of callers, was hired to lead the workshop, a maximum of 10 participants was decided on, and Ann Schau, a talented and experienced pianist and founder of the Dancehall Players, agreed to be our musician. The scene was set.

Activities for the callers included all-day workshops Friday and most of Saturday plus calling the Sunday morning workshop for dancers attending Hands Across the Water. In addition, callers attended one regular workshop and the two evening dances.

Friday morning, 10 callers from British Columbia, Washington, and Ontario gathered at Dan’s Hall, a wonderful space built by the late Dan Page for weekly English dances as well as Newfoundland dancing and house concerts. The day alternated between talk sessions and calling sessions. We talked about working with musicians, helping dancers move with the music, preparing a program, meeting dancers’ expectations, distractions on the floor, and giving and receiving feedback. We struggled most with the feedback system Bruce taught. It requires stating only observed facts: “I didn’t know which way to turn after the star left” and not assumptions or opinions, such as “you should have kept calling longer.” The caller responds with a simple “thank you,” does not try to explain or defend, and stores the feedback for later consideration. Dancers from VECDS kept us nourished with home-made snacks and lunch.

We all submitted three dances to Bruce and Rosemary, who then determined the program that we would call on Sunday morning when we would have 90 minutes for 10 callers! Nine minutes each to change callers, ask the band to play the tune, teach the dance, call the dance, introduce the next caller, and allow the sound man to adjust the sound—this was a challenge and a lesson in efficiency and brevity! The pressure was on.

Friday evening we joined local dancers and dancers attending Hands Across the Water for the Friday night dance called by Rosemary Lach and Bruce Hamilton. Saturday morning there were more workshops and practice calling. As Ann Schau was unable to attend one session, we practiced calling to our own vocalizations, a skill Bruce encourages callers to acquire so that they can give dancers an idea of the rhythm and tempo of the tune when there is no musician accompanying the teaching. Saturday night we danced to the calling of Nan Evans.

Sunday morning calling was both scary and thrilling. We’d been given very exact instructions about how long our dance could be, and we were filled with the advice we’d accumulated all weekend. There were more dancers in the room than most of us were used to, and we knew Bruce was taking notes in the corner. I appreciated the time we had spent with Ann during our workshops. The Dancehall Players are so talented and experienced that the music was a rock of reliability. We could see how much each of the other callers had improved over the weekend. We were high! We celebrated our collective success in the final feedback session with Bruce. We all cared so much for everybody’s success as well as our own.
Workshop Highlights

- Laughing, supporting, commiserating, sharing.

- Meeting with other experienced callers to share problems, questions, encouragement, advice, and stories. We were all experienced callers, but some of us have more opportunities to call and plan programs. We call to groups of differing size and levels of dancer experience. When a question came up (e.g. “How do I get the dancers to move to the music?”), Bruce had suggestions (“mention the music frequently, so the dancers know it’s important”), and so did the other callers (“play the tune first and, if your band can’t play under the teaching, doodle under it yourself - “circle left - diddledee,diddledee, diddlediddum, doo diddlee, diddlee, dump de dum”).

- Learning about the “contract” that exists between caller, musicians, and dancers. The contract is the (unspoken) expectations that the dancers have of the caller— mostly that there will be a lot of dancing, with minimum interruption. The caller has a certain amount of credit just for being there and earns more for every dance that is fun, for a well-designed program, and for dances that start quickly and go well. Credit is spent for anything that the caller does to take away from that: too much talking, unclear instructions, making a mistake, taking too long to get a dance started, not showing respect for the dancers. If enough credit has been accumulated, the caller can spend some of it taking time to demo a move or teach a bit of history about the dance.

- Receiving much useful advice from Ann Schau on how to work with a band to improve the experience of the musicians, the dancers, and the caller.

- Having Bruce as mentor and guide as we explored the delights and difficulties of being a caller.

WAIT! Here’s one more gem from Bruce. W.A.I.T. Why Am I Talking? Keep talking to a minimum; it draws down on credit.

Thank you to VECDS and CDSS, through the Mary Kay Friday fund, for their financial support of this workshop. And thank you to the Victoria dancers for holding this well-organized event, for providing such fabulous talent, and for giving us the opportunity to practice our skills.

Peggy Roe attended the callers’ workshop. She is a dance caller and choreographer from Vancouver BC.

Rosemary Lach planned and organized the workshop. She is a dance caller and organizer from Victoria BC.
A Place to Be: Margaret MacArthur’s Gift to Vermont Traditional Music

by Nora Rodes

Many people primarily credit male collectors such as Francis Child, Cecil Sharp, Phillips Barry, and John and Alan Lomax for the preservation of American folk song. Yet women have always played an essential role in collecting and sustaining traditional music. Between 1920 and 1960, it was the life’s work of many New England women, including Fanny Hardy Eckstorm, Mary Winslow Smythe, Helen Hartness Flanders, and Eloise Hubbard Linscott. And for several decades thereafter it was Margaret MacArthur’s work as well.

For years, I’d heard Margaret spoken of with deep affection but knew little more than that she was an important musician and collector, and that, like me, she loved ballads. The first CDs I could obtain were not the Child ballads I was expecting, but songs of Vermont, often sung with her family. And the first article I read about her was her granddaughter Robin's, in Orion Magazine, in which Robin wrote that Margaret sang because she “wanted a taproot—a means to a vertical sense of place.” So when I visited the American Folklife Center (AFC) to listen to the interview from Margaret’s performance there in 2005, I was already wondering about her connections between music and place. Why was Margaret so dedicated to preserving and sharing the traditional music of Vermont? And why did she become such a beloved and influential member of a vibrant, extensive community?

In that AFC interview, Margaret speaks at length about her mother’s second marriage to a forester, and the many different states she moved through in her transient childhood: Arizona, the Midwest, South Carolina, Missouri, and California. But she also talks about all the music she heard in her 1930s through 1940s travels, and her five years in the Ozarks, where traditional music was an important component of community. It seemed that music—like her mother’s lullabies and her Missouri neighbors’ songs—gave her a place to feel loved and safe.

When she eventually returned to her birthplace, Chicago, Margaret married, and in 1948 she and her husband John moved to Vermont for his professorship at Marlboro College. With two young children and very little money, they began to restore what the porcupines and weather had left of a remote and abandoned 1803 farmhouse with views of the Dover Hills. And Margaret began to know her newest home from two songbooks: Edith Sturgis’ Songs from the Hills of Vermont and Helen Hartness Flanders’ Country Songs of Vermont. When she learned that Edith’s hills were also hers—the Dover Hills—it was “an eye-opener.” She sought out more Vermont ballads, tunes, and source singers. Two of her most important relationships were with Fred Atwood (then in his 80’s), whose father had sung for Edith Sturgis, and Helen Hartness Flanders, the preeminent New England collector who became her friend and mentor.

In 1962, Moses Asch, then director of Smithsonian Folkways Records, asked Margaret to send him some music; the recordings became Folksongs of Vermont—the first of her nine CDs of traditional music. For over four decades, until her death in 2006, Margaret continued to collect, perform, and teach folk music. She frequently performed at folk programs and festivals, often with her own children—Dan, Gary, and Megan—and often original songs of life and events in Vermont as well as traditional ballads. She shared music at informal song circles and other gatherings. As a visiting artist, she taught children songs she learned from their grandparents and how to write songs of their own.

“…women have always played an essential role in collecting and sustaining traditional music. Between 1920 and 1960, it was the life’s work of many New England women…”
But Margaret didn’t just enthusiastically join and contribute her talents to the folk community. She provided a new place for that community to be: the homestead she’d created for herself and her family. Margaret was warm, friendly, joyful, and vibrant—a beacon for the music community around her and those simply traveling through. And as her daughter Megan’s accounts of growing up amidst expected and impromptu visitors and the letters sent to Margaret attest, the homestead itself became a vital component in the preservation and organic evolution of Vermont folk music.

Throughout Margaret’s childhood, her many experiences of both adapting to and embracing each new place as home gave her a unique perspective on what home means and why it matters. Many folk collectors have undertaken fieldwork asking: “What songs have traveled here; what songs have settled into this place? What can we find here?” Although she loved ancient ballads, Margaret approached her understanding of Vermont asking, more primarily: “What songs have grown from this place, what is it as itself, and what more will we sing?” To everything she did, Margaret brought an appreciation and enthusiasm for the indigenous, born of all the cultures she’d needed to embrace with presence and immediacy before the next relocation. Margaret fostered others’ engagement with identity and community, and in response, friends and neighbors shared not only their own collections and referrals to source singers, but their personal poems and songs as well (sometimes with notes about how Margaret “inspired” them).

Margaret created the home she yearned for by picking up all the things that spoke to her along the way and giving them a place to be: bits of her childhood, things gifted and repaired like her harp, bits from family travels and later her children’s. Everything that found its way there was loved. And she created a home for Vermont folk music—old and new—because Margaret herself and her home were inclusive and welcoming. It’s what we all long for, my generation at least, I know: belonging. And it’s what we can give to each other, and that seems more important than ever to remember today. And it’s what we can give to each other. And that seems more important than ever to remember today. Margaret put down deep roots, made her family farmstead an enduring home for generations and filled every life she touched with grace, joy, and music.

In recognition of her research and performance of traditional music, Margaret was honored as a “New England Living Art Treasure” in the 1985 Arts Biennial ceremony at the University of Massachusetts. In 1997, she was invited to perform a concert of Vermont music at the John F. Kennedy Center’s celebration of each state’s history and culture.

Margaret’s collection of songs, poems, books, and recordings is now housed at the Vermont Folklife Center in Middlebury, and her field recordings are all accessible digitally, with a duplicate of the physical tapes now at the American Folklife Center. The concert she performed for the Library of Congress is available online. Also check out the recent CDSS publication ‘On The Banks of Coldbrook’ by Tony Barrand, which contains many of the songs collected by Margaret, and a CD by Tony and Keith Murphy of the same name. Available in the CDSS Store.

At 16, Nora Rodes is an aspiring ethnomusicologist, developing a specialization in women folk collectors. Nora received the generous support of the Vermont Folklife Center’s 2019 Flanders Award for Traditional Vermont Music to come to know Margaret MacArthur. She hopes to continue discovering and giving voice to the traditional music that arises from and sustains community.
Imagine this. Along the shore of a mountain-ringed lake in northern Idaho, a fire is roaring in the stone fireplace of an 80-year-old cedar lodge, and Mark, the camp manager, is serving a home-cooked meal to 10 traveling Executive Committee members from all over the country. This was the setting for a weekend of meetings—that just so happened to coordinate with the Lady of the Lake Fall Dance and Music Weekend.

The Spokane Folklore Society and the Lady of the Lake Music and Dance Camps, both CDSS affiliates, invited us to hold our biannual board meeting at the N-Sid-Sen Camp & Retreat Center (a United Church of Christ facility). It’s a beautiful facility set on the shore of Idaho’s second-largest body of water, the 22-mile-long Lake Coeur d’Alene.

This was a novel format for the Traveling Executive Committee, to meet during a dance weekend (though it’s happened before—2007 in Arkansas). Usually the committee goes to visit one particular community. In this case, the community came to us. From a broad swath of a region called the Inland Northwest, which encompasses eastern Washington, northeastern Oregon, Idaho, Montana, and southern British Columbia, nearly thirty Forum members from 17 communities were able to attend the weekend. With the aid of a CDSS Outreach Grant, many of them were able to make the trip from quite remote locations.

In preparation for our meeting, Penn Fix organized the Lady of the Lake (LOL) Forum, a consortium of regional leaders interested in sharing resources, issues, and concerns facing their dance and music scenes. Over months of online sharing, they created an agenda for the Forum sessions at the fall camp.

At a late afternoon reception that kicked off the Forum, the participants met the CDSS board members and shared with them some of the issues they were interested in. Executive Director Katy German and President Gaye Fifer then shared the ways that CDSS could help communities achieve their goals.

After dinner that night, Katy German spoke to the entire weekend camp, about 130 participants, about CDSS and in particular the benefits it could provide individuals. All weekend, CDSS board members ate alongside these campers, sharing informally their enthusiasm for CDSS, and Forum members were encouraged to reach out to board members throughout the weekend.

“Now I know how ready CDSS is to make connections. I feel comfortable asking.”

—Forum participant
Diane Silver helped lead a Forum lunch table discussion on family dances. Katy and Gaye led a discussion with those interested in introducing English dance to their communities. Joel Bluestein advised about finances.

On Saturday, the CDSS board continued their all-day meeting. The main Forum sessions started mid-afternoon, first in a big circle with Katy, then in breakout sessions with CDSS committee members. Diane Silver and Avia Moore led a Dancer Safety and Etiquette group, JoLaine Jones-Pokorney talked about volunteerism, and Gaye Fifer discussed leadership burnout.

The Forum participant evaluations confirmed that we accomplished what we had set out to do during the weekend, which was for CDSS to do what it does best and share what it’s learned from the grass roots up. The Inland Northwest has some specific issues, particularly the remote geography and the distances. Their issues are not always what big city dances face. But the issues folks brought up in the meeting are common ones anywhere: attendance, burnout, volunteer and dancer recruitment, and dancer safety. CDSS has learned what works for other communities, and what can be adapted as strategies. And CDSS has resources, financial and informational, that can help communities be more resilient when faced with those forces.

The LOL Forum is now an ongoing vehicle for the Inland Northwest dance and music community. The Traveling Executive model coupled with the diverse group of campers found at the Lady of the Lake Fall Dance and Music Weekend allowed CDSS a unique opportunity to meet a vast range of community leaders that could not have happened any other way.

CDSS Grants Available!
Next Application Deadline: February 1, 2020

As mentioned in the article above, CDSS grant funding supported this exciting regional Forum that brought together almost 30 leaders of 17 communities. If you have an idea for an event or project to boost music, dance, or song in your community or region, CDSS funding is available to help YOU!

Our grants support training workshops (for callers, musicians, singers, etc.), events that foster youth involvement, seed money to help initiate a new series, and more. To apply for the next grant application deadline on February 1, visit cdss.org/support-services/outreach/outreach-funds. Questions? Email resources@cdss.org.

We all want well-earned ease and affordable elegance, but can you get that in a book? If you’ve ever danced Leah’s Waltz, The Chocolate Round O, or 6 for the 6 Proud Walkers, you’ll know the answer is yes. Ease and Elegance, Fried Herman’s classic sixth book of dances newly reprinted and available from CDSS, contains these and many more dances that add ease and elegance to your dancing pleasure. So many fine dances are waiting for an invitation from you to light up the dance floor!

The story of how it came to be reprinted after being out of print for almost a decade reveals a puzzle often encountered when trying to follow the posthumous wishes of any artist. What did the artist really intend?

Marking a Special Anniversary: As those of you who know me are aware, I’ve been a devotee of Fried Herman’s choreography and approach to English country dancing for decades. The same holds true for joyful dancer Susan St Germain of Country Dancers of Westchester (CDW) and Jane Bridges, Fried’s literary executor. The three of us were determined to recognize the tenth anniversary of Fried’s death this coming January. When I asked Jane Bridges what would be the most meaningful way to mark the occasion, she immediately answered, “Reprint Ease and Elegance.”

Susan contacted two printers in Westchester, one of whom, Airborn Printing and Graphics, had worked for Fried in the past and remembered her well. When they submitted the winning bid, Susan obtained an original camera-ready copy of Ease and Elegance from Jane Fried and brought it to the print shop along with an extra printed copy that I offered as backup. When the first proof came through, Susan discovered that four dances were missing! Oh, no, what else was different from the published version that both Susan and I had in our collections?

To make a definitive comparison, Susan carefully read through the printer’s proof, comparing it to the camera-ready copy and the published version, and in the process discovered other discrepancies. Apparently the bound copy that I had inherited was probably a late, very convincing, but incomplete mock-up of the final text. To complicate matters, the camera-ready copy and the published versions also diverged in other places.

Discrepancies and Their Resolution: At Faina Ross’s suggestion, we checked the Table of Contents and Index and found one dance repeated in the index. There were also some chord differences in comparing the three versions. Susan took the initiative to confer with CDW pianist Peter Roberts, to get his input as to which chords should be used. Happily, she and he were of the same opinion about which worked best, and so just like the late Leah Barkan before him, Peter helped with the chording of one of Fried’s books!

In the case of “Iantha the Lovely,” the printer’s version had no chords, so the decision was made to swap in that page from the version that had them. And finally for the dance “Since First I Saw Your Face,” which had two sets of chords, Susan and Peter decided to leave things that way, so that musicians would have a choice.

The reprinted edition of Ease and Elegance is on acid-free paper and should last as long as Fried’s unique choreography and insights into English country dancing continue to appeal to dancers and musicians. Be sure to read the hugely important essay on ECD in the book’s front section, and then delve into the many delightful dances waiting to be discovered or rediscovered.

Paul Ross is an ECD teacher at CDNY and CDW.
Thanks to the generous support of members and donors, this year CDSS offered over $46,600 in scholarship funds for our summer programs. A total of 107 campers aged 15-74 from 24 U.S. States, Canada, and the U.K. were awarded CDSS scholarships in 2019!

If you would like to apply for scholarship assistance to attend a CDSS Camp next summer, please apply online at cdss.org/scholarships. Applications received by March 23, 2020 will be processed first. Later applications will be considered as long as funds remain.

Group Affiliates Opportunity

Please consider joining CDSS in offering a matching scholarship in 2020. This one-on-one match from CDSS and your group can support an up-and-coming leader, musician, caller, dancer, or organizer from your community to attend a CDSS camp week, which will benefit your group in countless ways.

Donna Hunt, who helps to organize the PATMAD dances in Philadelphia, PA, shares below the positive impact this program has had in their community:

“We’ve been giving matching scholarships to members of our community since 2012. We help them to be immersed in the song and dance experience for a week, and then we sit back and watch them grow from the experience. Our participation in this scholarship program changes their lives and enriches our community in many ways…”

- One has been our PATMAD board president for 4 years
- One plays music, organizes special events, and manages the weekly dance
- One is now calling around our area and beyond and is on our sound crew
- One organizes some of our special theme events, helps to organize our weekly dances and another local dance community
- Three of our previous matching scholarship recipients are now actively calling in the Southwest, playing music and dancing in the Midwest, and helping to organize a dance and dance weekend in the Mid-Atlantic.”

Matching scholarship info is online at cdss.org/match

CDSS Affiliates who offered matching scholarships in 2019:

Ann Arbor Community for Traditional Music and Dance (MI)
CDSS of Pittsburgh (PA)
John C Campbell Folk School (NC)
Lenox Contra Dance (MA)
Louisville Country Dancers (KY)
Mat-Su Traditional Music and Family Dance (AK)
Nashville Country Dancers (TN)
Old Sod Folk Music Society of Ottawa (ON)
Philadelphia Area Traditional Music and Dance (PA)
Portland Intown Contra Dance (ME)
Scissortail Traditional Dance Society (OK)
Toronto Contra Dance (Toronto, ON)

New Generation Initiative Scholarships are offered collaboratively by CDSS and Pinewoods Camp. Qualifications: Ages 15-30, significant financial need, and coming to a CDSS week at Pinewoods Camp in Plymouth, MA for the first time (or returning for a significant reason). Talent and/or leadership initiative is helpful but not required. If you or anyone you know would be eligible for an NGI Scholarship, please email Linda Henry at linda@cdss.org.

New Photography Scholarships: We offered some new scholarships in 2019 to four talented photographers to help us document the magic of our camp programs. We’re grateful for the excellent work they have produced, such as the photo below by Jennifer Wik at Family Week Ogontz and the photo on the back cover, taken by Deborah Payne at Harmony of Song & Dance Week.
We each started country dancing in the early 1970s with Dudley Laufman, Sheila in Maine and David in New Hampshire. Music, song, and dance have been central to our lives for most of our adult lives. Over the decades, our involvement in these activities has included playing in a dance band, singing with Village Harmony, joining a longsword team, performing in the Hanover Christmas Revels, singing in a hospice chorus, and calling dances. David’s calling and our travels were, in roughly equal parts, devoted to English country, contra and squares, and community/children/family dancing. We have developed friendships throughout North America and Europe as a result of our dance-related travels. Indeed, our dozen trips to the Czech Republic and surrounding countries all started with a CDSS connection.

We’ve each served on non-profit boards and understand the financial needs of such organizations. Doing good work requires sustained funding. When we developed our estate plans, leaving a bequest to CDSS was a no-brainer. We’re excited about the directions in which CDSS is moving and expect the organization to bring people of all ages together for generations to come.

“Doing good work requires sustained funding. When we developed our estate plans, leaving a bequest to CDSS was a no-brainer.”

If you’d like to join the CDSS Legacy of Joy, fill out the online Request to Join form at http://cdss.org/legacy or call Robin Hayden at 413-203-5467 x107. CDSS will work with you to contribute a joyous photo, a zippy quote, and your own legacy story. Considering including CDSS in your estate plans but don’t know where to begin or what your options are? The Farthest North Contra Dance Community
2019 DANCE WORKSHOPS

September 6–8, 2019
French Bal Folk Dance Sampler
with Annie Fain Barralon
Try a sampling of dances from various regions of France, ranging from high-energy to slow and sweet, from circular in form to partner dances (partner not required), all to fantastic live music and song. Dances will be accessible, but previous dance experience is helpful, and be prepared for moderate exercise.

October 25–27, 2019
Fall Dance Weekend with Beth Molaro & Cis Hinkle
Join two amazing callers for a wide range of dance styles, including squares and contra, with live music from Boom Chuck (Laurie Fisher, Nic Coker, & Géraud Barralon) and Evening Star (Steve Hickman, John Devine, & Claudio Buchwald). All dances will be taught and walked through in advance. The weekend also includes free entry to our annual Halloween community contra & square dance on Saturday night. Some previous contra or square dance experience is recommended, but not essential. Singles and couples welcome.

November 22–24, 2019
Learn to Contra Dance with Bob Dalsermer & Charlotte Crittenden
Discover why so many people are enjoying this modern form of a centuries-old dance tradition. After learning basic moves with expert instruction, you’ll be ready to participate in the Saturday night community dance.

December 26, 2019 – January 1, 2020
Winter Dance Week
with Instructors: Susan Kevra, Joseph Pimentel, Greg Canote, Jere Canote, Sarah Henry, and Michael Gorin
Musicians: Daron Douglas, Karen Axelrod, Rachel Bell, Eileen Nicholson Kalfass, and Kristen Planeaux
Save the date for this celebratory week of fun dancing and wonderful live music. Complete details on folkschool.org.

2020 DANCE WORKSHOPS

March 27–29, 2020
Intro to Appalachian Clogging
with Annie Fain Barralon
It only takes knowing a few steps to dance to your heart’s content, and that’s what you’ll do in this Appalachian-style, percussive dance. Have a great time learning a variety of basic steps and short routines. The only requirement is to be fit enough to stand and be active for a couple of hours at a time.

April 24–26, 2020
English Country Dance Weekend
with Kalia Kibian
Experience the joy of English country dancing from the Playford dances of the 17th and 18th centuries to 20th century dances and contemporary dances. Live music by Bare Necessities (Earl Gaddis, Mary Lca, Peter Barnes, and Jacqueline Schwab). Previous English country experience is required.

May 17–23, 2020
Dancing, Playing & Singing Appalachian Style!
with Aubrey Atwater
Delve into the wonders of traditional Appalachian dance, singing, and music. Experience flatfooting and freestyle clogging steps, as well as traditional play-party games and dances geared to young people and older adults. We’ll learn and sing beautiful and joyous traditional songs and ballads as a means to explore the remarkable cultural history and heritage of the region. As time and access allow, try instruments such as the mountain dulcimer, fiddle, and banjo. All levels welcome.

June 21–27, 2020
Dance Callers’ Workshop
with Gaye Fifer
This workshop for beginning to intermediate callers offers a supportive environment designed to help students discover their strengths and explore new ideas. We will cover such topics as teaching techniques, recognizing good choreography, planning a program, leading effective walk-throughs, improving performance presence and vocal skills, and working with musicians. Gain direct experience as you practice calling/teaching actual dances, followed by dancer critique and observations using a safe and supportive feedback model.
